DUAL CREDIT ACADEMY

The McMurry Dual Credit Academy (DCA) delivers quality and flexible curriculum at an affordable price to high school students. Begin your college journey with the McMurry DCA offered by McMurry University and make progress towards your future now.

Application & Admission

All high school students are eligible to apply to the McMurry Dual Credit Academy (DCA). Your high school may be a preferred dual credit partner or you may take courses through McMurry DCA on your own. Homeschool students are welcome!

Begin your journey with the McMurry DCA and make progress towards your future now.

- Submit a free application at apply.mcm.edu/apply
- Your high school counselor will upload your transcript and endorse your admission
- Register for classes in your application portal

Admission Eligibility

Students must have consent and support from a high school counselor or principal. Homeschool students will need to supply an electronic recommendation form from a parent or guardian. This form will be emailed to the parent or guardian after the application has been submitted.

Courses

McMurry offers 20+ online asynchronous courses through the DCA. These courses are designed with the first-time learner in mind, with a similar course structure and layout across all courses. The dual credit course catalog spans many disciplines, including history, economics, government, fine arts, sciences, humanities, math, and business. Our DCA courses are designed to fit into the high school graduation plan and are transferable to two-year and four-year colleges and universities.

Approved students may enroll in any DCA course. Students are encouraged to limit enrollment to 12 hours a semester but can take additional classes with a counselor, principal, or parent or guardian support for homeschooled students.

Select DCA partner high schools may offer in-person dual credit courses at the high school. Check with your high school counselor about your campus's specific dual credit offerings.

The McMurry Dual Credit Academy Scholarship

Students who successfully complete a McMurry DCA course during high school will receive a one-time $1,000 scholarship upon enrolling at McMurry as a full-time incoming freshman.

Cost

The McMurry DCA is designed to be an affordable path towards receiving college credit for high school students. Courses through the DCA are:

- $200 for a three-hour course
- $300 for a four-hour course

McMurry DCA courses do not require textbooks, reducing your cost for dual credit. Some partner school districts may cover the cost of tuition for DCA students. Check with your high school counselor for further details.

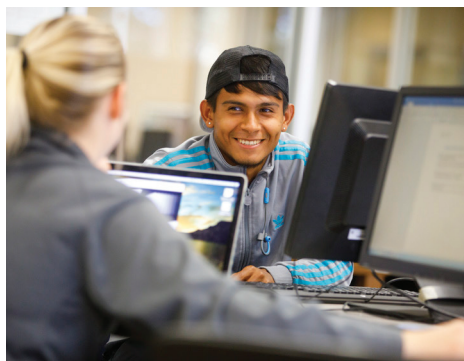

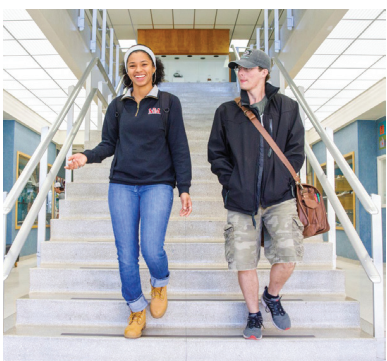

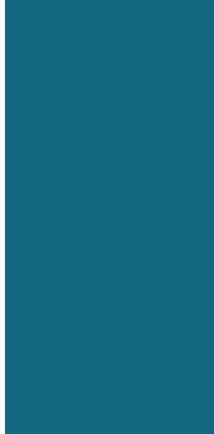

Associate Degree

McMurry University provides DCA students with the opportunity to obtain an Associate of Science Degree. Students who complete all 20 online courses or a combination of 20 online and in-person dual credit courses will be eligible for the associate degree. The associate degree is flexible, allowing students to transfer coursework or dual credit that may have been completed at other institutions. Get a head start on your college education and bachelor's degree by working towards your associate degree in high school. We recommend that students work closely with their high school counselor to plan their dual credit and associate degree pathways.
